

*KIS Poster
Contest update
April 21, 2003*

Mr. Alan Paller, SANS Institute, and Rear Admiral James Plehal, Department of Homeland Security, cast their ballots at FBI Hdqtrs., Washington, D.C., for the KIS Poster Contest.

*K.I.S.
(Kids Improving Security)
Poster Contest*

KIS (Kids Improving Security) National Poster Contest display at FBI Headquarters, Washington, D.C.

FBI Staff vote on posters competing at the national level for "Best Design" and "Best Message" in each grade category of the KIS Poster Contest.

KIS (Kids Improving Security) Poster Contest on display at the offices of White House staff members.

STAY SAFE ON LINE

White House & Homeland Security staff also participated in the national judging of the KIS Poster Contest.

Karen Krenzler, Policy Analyst for Educational Concepts, DHS, & Official Registrar of the national KIS Poster Contest, proudly displays national poster submissions from some of America's bright & talented youth.

